

Crystal Healing Temple

As I started the meditation, Ganesha appeared before me to let me know he was aware that I was looking at him tonight, I had been looking at images of him and reading up on his existence. I greeted him and he asked if I needed his assistance. I asked him to help me in my travels to the temple and asked Mary and Jesus as well as Archangel Michael to protect me on my journey as it was the first visit on my own without guidance.

Once in a heavy trance and clear mind I proceeded to climb out of my centre of head space and make my way subconsciously to the top of my head, from there I took a leap to a corner on the wall where I viewed the room from above, I then jumped to the roof and spent a couple of minutes looking around and at the stars and moon and beautiful dark sky. At my beckon a cloud collected me from the roof, a gentle gust of wind moved us forward and I asked to be taken to an Atlantis Healing temple. I landed at the edge of a cliff which appeared to be halfway up the base of a mountain, I am not sure if it was snowing at that level but there was a lot of white, I felt a cold breeze brush my body and as I looked around I noticed colossal heavy carved doors at the base of a cave before me. I was guided to knock a number of times to which I was greeted by 7 shorter ladies, perhaps 5ft 5', in long white dresses, each with a crystal representing their third eye and a pendant on their necklace representing the chakra each one was responsible for. They all had long straight dark hair and beautiful crystal blue eyes that caught my immediate attention; they were beautifully exotic in appearance. The delicateness in their movement and love in their expressions left me with great curiosity of their lives, they spoke no words but were surrounded by an angelic glow of white light. I too at that point noticed I was wearing a long white flowing dress that moulded to every step I took, no shoes, but a delicate string of sparkle around my forehead.

I was directed by one of the girls to lay on a bed made of a carved block of quartz crystal, as I lay I noticed an opening in the roof of the cave that allowed the Divine light to enter its darkness, being that the cave was all crystal inside, the reflections were outstandingly capturing. There was another slab of quartz crystal that was shaped with a point directed to the block where I lay, this crystal appeared to be mobile but sturdy, I presume it could only be moved by telekinesis as there was no aid for its movement and the girls together appeared a little petite and not physically strong enough to perform such a task. They each carried a different colour stone, rough cut and placed the suitable colour above each chakra they represent. When the light hit the main crystal and that in turn connected to the chakra crystals an amazing rainbow of reflections penetrated my body and I immediately felt a warm glow surround me. I also thought it ironic that thunder began rolling at that very point. Within minutes a shadow appeared before my eyes, he was tall, well built, clean shaved head, he too wore a white robe, long and crisp. He placed his hands on my head and I could feel his strength and power shift an energetic field in my space, his movements in sync to the energies around as he performed his healing on every inch of my body. I could see his silent control over the girls, as it only took a look from his dark mysterious eyes to summon them to his whim.

Once completed I gave gratitude and love to them and returned outside to my cloud and journeyed back home, back into my centre of head space, at which point I summoned the same healing master to connect to earth via an etheric chair I had placed 10 feet behind me and grounded to the earth so as to protect myself. I asked him to connect his energy through my hand chakras and as I told him this I could feel an indefinite string of energy tickle my palms. He then guided my hands to two places on my body, the first my eyes and the second my left side. I could feel at both instances his energy surrounding the areas and a strong warmth around them. When finished I thanked him and asked that he been returned to his temple with Archangel Michael for protection.

I was really grateful for this experience, it is amazing to see how natural medicine/energy was used in healing way before our time, it leaves me questioning why things have changed and feels as if we have regressed rather than progressed. Why are our minds so clouded is the desire for technology to move forward? I wondered if I too had been in those temples centuries ago as one of the girls or even as the healing master. Maybe another reading into the past will tell a story of a life centuries ago intertwined with majestic healing powers and knowledge far beyond our imaginations.
